29,
Fitzroy Square,
W.

Dec 9 - 1908

My Violet.

I have been at Newnham, & cold & ill-tempered.
Do give me the Oxford
Book of French Verse.
Edited by John Lucas.
I have never got it, &
want it.
Now you must tell me
also what you shall have.
Yr WS.

29,
Fitzroy Square,
W.

Dec 13th 1905

My Violet

Why didn't you come up? I was merely walking round & round my room & looking at the backs of books. You might have dropped me a line - how are my ideas. Am I to make any engagement? Nina says you are going to face: I stay here till

Easter. I have no particular engagement. Can you come & see me any day,
or will you lunch?
On Monday I have Ottoline & Miss Case, who wish to discuss the morality of Baroness
v. Hager. I have just written an immense Duke article upon Kerensky history for the Times, rather in the style of Herbert Fisher & Miss Sackville.

NYPL

29,
Fitzroy Square,
W.

Dec 1900

My Violet

I am dining out, alas tomorrow – a thing I never do

I had tea with Otterline today & on Friday I go & see Clare.

Shall we get on? I put the disaster on your conscience.

Love

29,
Fitzroy Square,
W.

1908

My Victor,

How I shall have to get for a postal order. I bar. my eyes on a beautiful Moliere. for which I shall appropriate 10/- & that is altogether too much.
But flesh is weak.
We had Mrs Daniel
She seems such a merry soul. Mrs Asquith & my wife. Venia flourishes —
the doctor has given up daily visits. I shall take my book.

W.S.

29,
Fitzroy Square,
W.

June 1909

Dr Violet

Yes as much tea generous. It should have been 5 & not 15.
What work shall I get you? You said you wanted talk me.

I am considering what work I shall

get – a very pleasant situation. Especially as I have been very economical in mar
line lately.

I feel immensely old-ish a a hoary grey tortoise, who only comes out in the sun.

NYPL

How are you?

Yours